About the Conference

Climate change is matter of concern for global agriculture, particularly in hyper-arid and semi-arid regions of India, where erratic weather and resource constraints worsen the crisis. However, nutri-cereals like sorghum, millets (pearl millet, finger millet, little millet, kodo millet, barnyard millet, foxtail millet, proso millet) and Smart-Foods such as amaranth, quinoa, chia, dragon fruit etc. offer climate-resilient eco-friendly, nutrient-rich alternatives. Their adaptability and sustainability make them vital for ensuring food and nutritional security and promoting diversified agriculture.

In backdrop of mentioned facts, Agriculture University Jodhpur is organizing the National Conference “NUTRITION:2025” during March 18-19, 2025. The event will focus on leveraging Nutri Cereals and Smart Foods to address global challenges including genetic improvement, innovative technologies, nutrition issues, sustainability and economic development with expert discussions and innovative research and developmental ideas, the conference aims to foster collaboration among scientists, farmers, entrepreneurs, policymakers, and industry stakeholders, paving the way for resilient and nutritionally secure agricultural practices.
